The story published yesterday to the effect that United States men of war had sailed for Venezuela with orders to interfere in the relations between that nation and Great Britain is highly improbable. It is true that there has been some dispute between the two countries in regard to boundary questions, but it is not to be presumed that it is the intention of Great Britain to force a settlement by the seizure of Venezuela. And although such an act might give rise to serious remonstrance on the part of the United States, and if the remonstrance were disregarded might require the enforcement of the Monroe doctrine even by arms, the mere dread or supposition that such an act was pending would not justify the sending of an armed expedition with orders such as are supposed to have been given to Admiral Walker. A far more likely explanation is to be found in the recent civil contests which have made life unpleasant for foreign residents in more than one South American republic. In particular it will be remembered that in Venezuela one of the contending factions recently took political refugees from an American steamer in gross violation of international rights. The administration has done well in sending a portion of our navy to enforce the rights of American citizens there, but no one will believe for a moment that they have gone to precipitate an armed combat with Great Britain.

Extensive preparations are being made for the Grand Valley fair, which is to be held at Rifle this week. Rifle is the center of a large area of fine agricultural land, which is developing rapidly, and which has already taken high rank among the sections of our state. In addition to the improvements in the way of orchards and buildings upon land which have been long settled, large tracts of new land are being made available for cultivation by extensive ditches. One of the largest of these is being constructed by a company of which Mr. Henry W. Hallett, well known in this city, is the leading spirit. It will irrigate a large tract of the finest fruit land on the north side of the Grand river below the town of Rifle. There are good reasons for believing that the display of products at the fair will be exceptionally fine, and the occasion will afford an interesting opportunity to see how fast the wilderness is giving place to orchards and gardens in western Colorado.

A vigorous effort should be made to secure the location of the Cigarmakers' National home in this city. This is the first of the trades unions to be stirred to action by the printers, and it in turn is likely to arouse others. We understand that the cigarmakers are favorably inclined towards Colorado Springs, as indeed they have good reason to be, and we trust that the inducements here will be at least equal to those of any other location. In such a case we may trust to our unexcelled situation and our unequalled improvements to turn the tangle in our favor.

The reason why Candidate Weaver no longer considers the coinage of gold and silver to be a relic of barbarism is because the silver men have votes, and some of them are going to be foolish enough to vote for Weaver.

There are a few of the Democrats in this state who have not sacrificed all their history and principles upon the altar of expediency in the temple of Gorgan Wilson. To it are making so desperate a fight in the state convention as to [illegible]. They are, however, in such a hopeless minority that all their efforts seem likely to prove in vain.

In these days of fusion and confusion, it is well to remember that there is a difference between a Bourbon Democrat and a People's party man. The Bourbon never thinks, and the Populist thinks crooked.

A question now exercising western medical experts is, "Is cholera dangerous after frost comes?" And our answer would be, Not if it is kept out of the country.

As a matter of poetic justice America ought to be kept free from the cholera on account of the charity extended to the starving Russian peasants.

Cleveland and Hill have patched up a truce, but the old hole still shows through the darn. It will never stand the wear and strain until election.

The principal occupation of some New Yorkers seems to be an attempt to help cholera run the blockade.

The man who can be proud of being a Democrat these days can be proud of very little.

Manitou is True.

Manitou Journal.

Whatever defections there may be in other parts of El Paso county, this one thing is sure—that Manitou will be true to the Republican party. This town may be relied upon to return her old time majority for the Republican candidates, no matter what may happen. The Populist idea, which seems to have a foothold in some parts of the state has none whatever in Manitou. We have no Populists. Nearly all our voters are Republicans and are true to the faith always.

The Strongest Candidate.

Glenwood Avalanche.

The Republican state convention has placed in the field for governor the very strongest man in the party. Few people will realize this truth more forcibly than those of Glenwood. Those who were in attendance when the state convention met here last fall and placed him in nomination for judge of the supreme court will not readily forget the enthusiasm which the mention of his name aroused. County after county arose to second his nomination and bear witness to his integrity. Judge Helm is a man who has the respect and will command the support of every section of the party. With he in the field Father-in-law Waite will not be in the race.

The Coincident Curse of Gold.

The goldseekers of both America and Australia have a singular but well grounded superstition that the discoverers of hidden treasures are sure to meet with violent deaths. The original prospectors of between thirty-five and forty of the most prosperous gold and silver mines in this country are known to have come to just such ends. Out of the forty or so twelve were shot or stabbed to death in saloon or other broils, five committed suicide, three were engulfed by landslides, five turned murderers or robbers and were caught and executed in various ways, one fell into a boiling spring and had the flesh literally stewed from his bones, while the others have disappeared and no one knows what became of them.

George H. Fryer, once the millionaire proprietor of the Fryer Hill mine, committed suicide in Denver after spending the last nickel between himself and starvation. The discoverer of the great Standard mine, in California, was caught and swallowed up in an avalanche. Colonel Story was killed by Indians; William Fairweather, of the famous Alder Gulch mine, died with the "frenzied horrors" after a continuous two years' debauch. "Farrell of Meadow Lake" died with a terrible disease in a San Francisco hospital. The owner of that great mine, the Homestake, became a highwayman and was shot while robbing a stage coach. John Hower tried the same route that Fryer went. "Doughnut Bill," "Nineмile Clarke," "Old Eureka" and many others were killed in saloons. St. Louis Republic.

Finest Carpets in the World.

I mean to make a pilgrimage to Fontainbleau in order to see two wonderful carpets which have been transferred to the palace by the president's orders, and which are said to be the most superb articles of the kind in the world. They were ordered by Napoleon III at the Gobelin manufactory in 1868. They are of colossal dimensions, one being nearly thirty feet square, while the other is eleven yards long and ten yards wide.

It took ten years to complete them, and once finished their extraordinary size caused them to be packed away in the storehouse of Les Gobelins, whence they were not extracted even to be exhibited at the exhibitions of 1878 and 1889. They are the finest articles of the kind that have been produced for the French government since Louis XIV ordered "ninety-three carpets for ceremonies and festivals" to be manufactured at the Savonnerie for the great ballrooms and reception rooms of the Louvre and of Versailles.

The smaller of the two, which has a yellow ground, is set down in the inventory as being worth $40,000, the larger, the ground of which is black, being estimated at $50,000, though the real value of each is stated to be at least double.—Paris Letter.

How Sir Gavan Duffy Looked.

Mrs. Carlyle, in her "Journal," thus describes Sir Charles Gavan Duffy as he looked in 1844 during a visit he paid to "the sage of Chelsea:" "Mr. Duffy quite took my husband's fancy, and mine also to a certain extent. With the coarsest of human faces, decidedly as like a horse's as a man's, he is one of the people that I should get to think beautiful."

Sir Charles Gavan Duffy himself tells this story: An artist named Cromley painted his portrait and bestowed on him a dreamy poetic face which might have passed for Shelley's. The portrait was shown to Daniel O'Connell by the artist in presence of Duffy. "I not that very like Duffy," said Cromley. "Him," said O'Connell, looking from the portrait to the original, "I wish Duffy was very like that."—London Star.

Digging Earthworms.

A man tells how to get earthworms without digging for them. Take a strong stick four or five feet long and sharp at one end and go to some locality, such as the back of a barn, where the worms are sure to be plentiful. Drive a stick four or five inches into the ground with a hammer or stone and then begin to twist it with a rotary motion. Every few minutes hit the top a rap to drive the point further into the ground and keep on twisting. In five minutes the worms will begin crawling out of their holes and all you have to do is to pick them up and put them in your can.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Too Bad.

"Well, if that ain't mean!" exclaimed the prisoner. "Every one o' the stories in this paper they've gimme to read is 'to be continued.' An me to be hung next week."—Tit-Bits.

REAL McKINLEY PRICES.

Cost of Living Very Often—Wages Have Fallen Under the McKinley Tariff.

Of course you remember the great campaign of lying in 1890, when the Democratic hirelings from one end of the land to the other proclaimed (beginning before the ink of the president's signature to the new tariff was yet dry) that prices of manufactures were "mounting skyward" because of the new measure. They enlisted the services of unscrupulous tradesmen, who, for the sake of temporary gain no less than for political effect, expected from their customers the excessive prices made possible by the Democratic "McKinley prices" bulletins. And peddlers were even hired to go about offering tinware and other household utensils at fabulous prices, with instructions to say that such prices were made necessary by the "McKinley bill." The election, occurring less than a month after the new measure took effect, allowed the people no opportunity to discover the truth before voting, and the result was the great triumph of lying and the election of the present free trade majority to the lower house of congress.

When after election, the people began to learn that prices instead of being higher, were actually lower, as a rule, than before the new tariff, the free traders dropped the prices question and took another tack. They started in asserting that wages were falling and have kept up their assertions to this effect incessantly down to the present writing. They considered themselves safe from conviction here because of the known difficulty of gathering wages statistics for the whole county. But this lie, also, has now been run to earth.

The senate committee, appointed soon after the passage of the McKinley measure, to investigate its effects on prices and wages, have just reported the following results:

During the twenty-eight months from June 1, 1889, to Sept. 1, 1891 (the act took effect Oct. 6, 1890), the average retail prices of twenty one articles of common consumption among the people declined .04 per cent.; wholesale prices of the same articles declined .33 per cent.; prices of agricultural products advanced 18.67 per cent., and wages advanced on the average .75 per cent.

This is the result obtained and unanimously accepted by Senators Aldrich, Allison, Hiscock and Jones, for the Republicans; Senators Harris and Carlisle, for the Democrats. The details of the investigation were conducted by Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of the department of labor at Washington, D. C., Gen. Francis A. Walker, Prof. Henry C. Adams, Edward Atkinson, Prof. Edmund J. James, and Williamson Grosvenor. Of the assistants, the first is independent on the tariff question; the next three are free traders, and the last two are protectionists. All are men of unquestioned probity and of world-wide reputation as economists and statisticians.

We have eliminated the Pacific states from this comparison because of the abnormal conditions, such as the extreme scarcity of labor, existing in those commonwealths. Considering the sections given in our table we find that wages are highest in the eastern states, which are essentially manufacturing communities.

Continuing through the middle and western states, wages gradually fall, being lowest in the south, the section most distinctly agricultural. The same result is shown in the comparison between wages in individual states.

States.	Wages.
Massachusetts	$22 70
Rhode Island	22 00
Iowa	20 30
Minnesota	20 00
South Carolina	12 50

From the figures given we readily perceive that wages of farm laborers are higher or lower, according as the country in question is more or less a manufacturing section. This is a natural consequence of placing the farm and the factory together, for the market developed by the latter for the products of the former not only results in higher prices for those products, but also, and through these higher prices, in higher wages for the workingmen producing them. Thus we have another demonstration of the beneficent effect on agriculture of our protective policy.

A Deadly Parallel from History.

The tariff of 1800 was by no means the first in our history to prove the utter unreliability of free trade predictions of evils to come upon the country under its operation.—Here, for instance, is a quotation from our old free trade friend, the New York Evening Post, of July, 1824, relative to the famous protective tariff act of that year. We place beside it the simple statement of the facts revealed by eight years' actual experience under that tariff, as made by Henry Clay in a speech in the senate, 1832.

Pass the tariff as reported by the committee and you palsy the nation. Pass it, and where will you any longer find occupants for your costly piles of stores and dwelling houses? Pass it, and who will be exempt from its grinding operation?

The poorer classes, especially, must feel its effect in paying an additional price for every article of clothing they and their families wear, and every mouthful they eat of drink, save cold water; and to that will they ere long be reduced.—New York Evening Post, July, 1824.

On a general survey we behold cultivation extended; the arts flourishing; the face of the country improved; our people fully and profitably employed; the public countenance exhibiting tranquility, contentment and happiness; its public debt of two wars nearly redeemed; and, to crown all, the public treasury overflowing. If the term of seven years were to be selected of the greatest prosperity which this people has enjoyed since the establishment of their present constitution, it would be exactly that period of seven years which immediately followed the passage of the tariff of 1824.—Henry Clay, speech in the senate, 1832.

All he Got Through the Experiment.

The Green Bag.

A small Scotch boy was summoned to give evidence against his father, who was accused of making disturbances in the streets. So the bailie to him, "Come, my wee man, speak the truth, and let us know all ye ken about this affair."

"Weel, sir," said the lad, "d'ye ken Inverness street?"

"Hoots, laddie," replied his worship, "of course I know Inverness street."

"Weel, ye gang along it, and turn into the square, and cross the squre——"

"Yes, yes," said the bailie, encouragingly.

"An' when ye gang across the square, ye turn to the right and up into High street, and keep on up High street till you come to a pump."

"Quite right, my lad, proceed," said his worship. "I know the old pump well."

"Weel," said the boy, with the most infantile simplicity, "ye may gang and pump it, for ye'll no pump me."

ATTENTION!! G. A. R.

The Santa Fe Route with its usual promptness has not only arranged for reduced rates of less than one fare for the round trip to the National Encampment at Washington in September, but has also secured free sleeping accommodations for all old soldiers after arrival in Washington.

New and commodious barracks have been erected in the Washington Monument Park, in which we will reserve quarters for all old soldiers and G. A. R. if application is made in advance.

Arrangements have also been made to serve meals in temporary dining rooms in the vicinity of the barracks at very moderate prices.

Special trains containing Pullman and Tourist Sleepers, Chair Cars and coaches will be arranged from Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Oklahoma, on which we will reserve accommodations if advised of your wishes.

Stopovers will be allowed east of our lines.

As the Santa Fe is the only line in the West offering these inducements, it would be advisable to make early application to the undersigned or to Geo. T. Nicholson, G. P. & T. A., Topeka, for such accommodations as you may desire.

Further particulars, such as dates of sale, limits, etc., can be obtained by applying to

A CLEAR CASE.

It has been proven beyond all question of a doubt that Oregon Kidney Tea will cure all cases kidney and urinary troubles, pains in the back, diabetes, inflammation of the bladder, nervousness and all complaints arising from a diseased or debilitated state of the kidneys or urinary organs of either sex.

The drinking of alkaline impure water will in time weaken and derange the urinary organs of the strongest constitutions, bringing on a diseased condition that ends in time prove disastrous, but this evil effect of bad water or change of climate may be counteracted by the use of Oregon Kidney Tea. It is pleasant to take, and a trial will convince you of its merits. Call and get a sample package free. For sale by Mr Peter Schmitt has gone on a visit to his parents in St Joseph.

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Otto B Yetchker and Miss Jessie C Nashius, both of Davenport Ia.

There will be a meeting of the Cowell Hose company for the transaction of important business this evening at 8 o clock.

All members of Colorado Springs Wheelmen are requested to meet at Henry Weber's office this evening at 8 o'clock.

A pulley on the connecting shaft at the Rapid Transit power house broke Sunday night and the cars were tied up over three hours.

Rev J F Lucas, pastor of the Christian church, has resigned A meeting of the church will be held next Sunday to take action on his resignation.

Mr Lester R. Bridaham who has been a resident of this city for several years left last evening for Council Bluffs, Ia., where he will be head clerk at the Grand Mr E. F Clark's hotel.

A man named George Erickson, said to have a brother here was killed near Butte, Mont., yesterday Postmaster Everleth would be glad to receive any information as to any of his relatives.

A man who was drunk in a Huerfano street restaurant and who drew a knife on a companion, was fined $20 and costs in the police magistrate's court yesterday Four citizens who left their horses unhitched paid the penalty of their carelessness in fines of one dollar and costs each.

Colorado Springs is to have a rival in the struggle for the possession of the proposed Pythian Home, in Brighton, Col., whose Knights of Pythias are already hard at work to secure the home. The matter will be discussed at the Grand Lodge session which begins in Manitou to-day.

The Cripple Creek Crusher is vigorously fighting the overcapitalization of mining companies, thinking that from $200,000 to $300,000 is enough capital for a prospect hole to start off with It prints up alphabetical list of 163 companies now operating in that district and thinks that that is enough for a camp to work with.

On and after Monday, Sept 19, no books will be given out at the free library until the building is moved. Any persons having deposits can secure the same by calling at the rooms before that date. Those who have books out are requested to return them this week as it is uncertain how long the library will be closed.

Mr. Guy E. Smith has obtained leave of absence from John A Logan Camp, Sons of Veterans, and leaves to-day for Washington, D C., to attend the G. A R grand encampment and participate in the great Sons of Veterans parade. He will then attend Drury College at Springfield, Mo. His aunt, Miss Emma Wilson, accompanies him to Washington.

It has been discovered that the 16 inch water main which supplies the greater part of the city runs on Huerfano street directly under the line of the pavement on the south side of the viaduct. A special meeting of the city council was held yesterday afternoon and it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the water committee and the consulting engineer, Mr Bland. The main will probably be arched over with brick so that the foundation will not settle and break it. The extra cost will be about $600.

The Antlers souvenir spoon is the latest fad too much of a fad for Mr Barnett to endure with complacency It is a plain silver spoon, with the name of the hotel stamped on the handle, and it is served with the after dinner coffee In the past two weeks some of the transient guests have been putting them in their pockets to remember the hotel by, until now at least two dozen are gone. Mr Barnett kept his good nature until last night, when a silver teapot disappeared, but now he wants the blood of the man who started The Antlers souvenir silverware fad.

The committee of the Cigarmakers International union who were here looking over the ground with a view to a site for a cigarmakers' home left yesterday for Monte Vista where they will inspect a proposed site. They are very much impressed with this city and are very favorably inclined with the idea of locating here. There were quite a number of people in town who would have liked to have met the committee but failed because they were here on Sunday. The committee will return to-morrow and persons who would like to see them can make arrangements through Mr George E. Zackular, with Voss & Co

All felt well repaid for an evening's attendance at the camps first camp fire John A Logan camp is in quite a flourishing condition

Alexander Salvini.

Alexander Salvini opened his season very auspiciously in Louisville, Ky, last week One of the largest and most fashionable audiences ever in Macauley's theater greeted him in his magnificent production of Don Caesar de Bazan His forthcoming tour of the Pacific slope is likely to be even more successful than his eastern tours He has been seen in San Francisco as a member of A M Palmer's company, but never as a star His successful revival of the romantic drama will be welcome on the coast, as the Californian theater goer is as fond of the bloodstirring pictures from the days of chivalry as his brother in the east He loves to hear the clank of swords and to hear a truly chivalrous dispute But they like to see those who endeavor to portray such scenes able to carry their swords with courtly grace and be able to use them deftly too when occasion occurs, and they like to see them look the heroes their speech implies

Alexander Salvini has the physique, the manly bearing and native eloquence that these roles require and from what the eastern critics say he enacts them as no one has done since the days of Charles Fechter He will appear at the opera house this coming season
